Report

The TYBBA (Computer Applications) students recently visited the Satellite Cable Communication Center in Manchar as part of their academic fieldwork. This visit provided valuable insights into the functioning of satellite and cable communication systems, including how signals are transmitted, received, and distributed across networks. Students observed the headend setup, satellite dishes, and cable infrastructure, gaining practical knowledge about digital broadcasting, signal modulation, and the role of set-top boxes. The interaction with technical experts helped clarify complex concepts and highlighted the importance of communication technology in modern media. Overall, the visit was an enriching experience that bridged classroom learning with real-world applications.
