The approximation of π day event was organized by the department of Mathematics and Statistics on 22 July 2023 in which 12 students of F.Y.B.Sc. were participated. The event aimed to celebrate the mathematical constant π (Pi) and its significance in various mathematical and scientific contexts. The students participated enthusiastically in various activities that highlighted the importance of π and its approximation methods.

The approximation of π day event was a combination of educational and fun activities that engaged the students in exploring different aspects of π and its approximations. The event commenced with a lecture by Prof. R. M. Wayal. The lecture covered the history of π , its significance in mathematics and science, and its role in various formulas and calculations. The students gained insights into the fascinating world of this irrational number. After the π approximation contest was held where students were challenged to approximate the value of π using various methods. Participants showcased their skills in using geometric shapes, such as polygons, to estimate π . The activity encouraged critical thinking and creative problem solving.
