Report:

A Guest Lecture on 'Communication Skills and Strategies to crack NET/SET Exams'

The Department of English organized a guest lecture on 'Communication skills' and 'Strategies to crack NET/SET Exams' at English Language Laboratory. The lecture was delivered in two sessions, the first session was on 'Communication Skills' and second session was on 'Strategies to Crack NET/SET Exams'. The resource person Dr. Tushar Kamble started the lecture with very basic question 'What is Communication?'. He took activities like brainstorming, guising, pronunciation, tongue twister etc. The students participated actively in the communication process.

In the second session, he guided students on how to qualify NET/SET exams. Initially, he gave some basic information like exam pattern, syllabus, marks, number of papers and the nature of questions. Then, he gave some sites to refer and few reference books list. He gave some tricks to solve question like making nuemonics
